What you should know about the new smoke-free law.

- Starting October 1, all indoor public places—including all businesses, bars and restaurants—will become smoke-free.
- The new law will improve the health of all Minnesotans as well as reduce healthcare costs.
- Every year, $215 million is spent in Minnesota to treat secondhand smoke-related health conditions.
- The new Freedom to Breathe Act ensures that all employees, including those in the hospitality industry, will not be exposed to harmful secondhand smoke.
- For additional details about the law, visit freshairmn.org.
